What is the purpose of this plan?

Historic places, buildings and stories make up the community identity and remind us of our shared history. To preserve and deepen our roots, and celebrate historical and cultural resources that represent Manhattan's History, the City of Manhattan is preparing a Historic Preservation Plan with the help of community residents and stakeholders.

As part of this plan, we will identify buildings, places and cultural assets worthy of preservation and protection, determine historic preservation's role in the economic development within the city, and determine actionable initiatives and goals to guide future preservation decision making. The City of Manhattan encourages and welcomes your participation and feedback in this planning process!
